XXVI SEDERI INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE

Commerce, Communities and the Global Early Modern

Jaén, 11-13 May 2015
2nd CALL FOR PAPERS

We are pleased to announce that the 26th SEDERI Conference will be held at the Baeza Campus of the International University of Andalucía (UNIA) (Baeza, Jaén, Spain) on 11-13 May 2015. The Conference will explore the globalized nature of the early modern world at large and early modern English texts in particular. Papers addressed to literary representations of trade, mercantilism, the construction of communities, and cross-cultural encounters are especially welcome.

The organizing Committee and SEDERI invite proposals of 20-minute papers on the following topics:

- Early modern England and the early modern world
- Anglo-Iberian and Anglo-Mediterranean relations: Culture, economy and politics
- Merchants and markets: Nascent capitalism in early modern English literature
- The Construction of the Other in early modern English texts
- Thomas More, his Circle and the Republic of Letters
- Rome, Reformers and Recusants
- Liminal spaces: neg(oti)ation
- Women Writers and the Printing Business
- Politics and propaganda in Early Modern English Literature
- Travel Writing in Early Modern England
- English early modern literature, language and culture

The following plenary speakers have confirmed their participation:

John Drakakis (University of Stirling, Scotland)

Daniel Vitkus (University of California, San Diego, United States)

Linda McJannet (Bentley University, Massachusetts, EEUU)

Papers and round table discussions: We welcome proposals for papers and round table discussions (20' presentation + 10' discussion). Contributors must submit the following information:

SEDERI
Spanish and Portuguese Society for English
Renaissance Studies
Sociedad Hispano-Portuguesa de Estudios
Renacentistas Ingleses
Sociedade Espanhola e Portuguesa de Estudos
Renascentistas Ingleses

About the paper:

- Full title
- A two-hundred word abstract
- Technical requirements for the presentation

About the contributor(s):

- Full name
